Whalers burned them by the thousands, and the population of penguins in the Falklands Islands plummeted until there was a devastating change to their environment in the 1980's; the Falklands War. In 1982 Argentina decided they would like to claim the Falklands Islands once and for all, and being just off the Argentinian shore, you would think this would be an easy feat.

The Real Winners of the Falklands War, Were the Penguins

The Falkland Islands used to have a population of 6 million - penguins, that is. Now the numbers are down to 1 million, and the conservationist who blew the whistle on the environmental catastrophe is being driven out. When British troops landed on the Falklands in 1982, they took with them from their briefings a decades-old Foreign Office joke.
